DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Applicant's arguments, see Remarks, filed 2/8/2008, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-14, 26-27, 31-38, and 40 under 102(b) over Kihara et al. (6,579,265) have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of the reference cited below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-23 and 31-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Larsen et al. (6,736,797). Larsen discloses an infusion set (see the embodiment shown in Figures 20-33) comprising a base (40), a cannula (49) connected to and extending away from the base, a connector (55) removably attached to the base, and a tube (57) affixed to the connector, wherein the connector is rotatable on the base to more than 5 degrees while the cannula is at a subcutaneous position and limited to less than 360 degrees around an axis that is substantially perpendicular to the base, wherein the connector comprises multiple stop surfaces (66, see at least Figures 32-33) for inhibiting rotation beyond 360 degrees, and a contiguous passage for passing fluids is formed from the tubing to the cannula when the connector is removably attached to the base, wherein the base comprises multiple barriers spaced around the perimeter of the base (sides of 47) and extending from the surface of the base, wherein the barriers restrict the movement of the stops, wherein the rotation is limited to less than 30 degrees, further comprising a needle hub (58,59) and an adhesive pad (61). In regards to claims 31 and 34, the connector (55) can be attached to the base in at least two different positions.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 26-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Larsen et al. (6,736,797). The examiner contends that the connector of Larsen can rotate to about 10 degrees, but if the applicant disagrees, the examiner maintains that the degree of rotation is a matter of design choice. In paragraph [0056] on page 11, the applicant discloses that multiple degrees of rotation are contemplated including at least 2 degrees, 5 degrees, 7.5 degrees, and 10 degrees. The applicant has not shown that one rotational arrangement works better than any other rotational arrangement. Therefore, the examiner maintains that the degree of rotation is a matter of design choice that fails to patentably distinguish over the prior art.
